the direction of Galloway Mortuary.

Pallbearers were Joe Luark, Kenneth Leggett, Jack Kimball, E. C. Whiddon, John Marshall, Hubert Degosserie, R. T. Powell, and Bill Ross.

The Rev. Mr. Kennedy was born December 26, 1900, in North Dakota. While very young, he moved to Canada. He started his religious work as a missionary there. He next lived in California, and there received his college training in Los Angeles University.

For many years, he traveled in his evangelistic work out of Dallas. In 1932 he was married to Miss Lola Von Roeder.

Mrs. Kennedy, who recently was injured when thrown from a horse on the Kennedy ranch west of Pettus, was unable to attend the funeral services. She is at the home of a sister in San Antonio. Joe Luark, close friend of the family, made a recording of the services for the family.

Rev. W. R. McPherson, pastor of the Neosho church, where Rev. Mr. Kennedy was conducting the revival, said the evangelist had not complained of being ill. However, he had planned to go to Springfield, Mo., at the end of the revival for a physical checkup.

"Bob Kennedy had a brilliant mind, and a very superior ability in the use of wit," said a friend and neighbor. "His wide reading encompassed much in addition to theology. His philosophy of life was sound, and his knowledge of human and spiritual values was well in balance."

The minister is survived by his wife, a son, Bill, and a daughter, Lavonne, both high school students.

Honorary pallbearers were Dr. E. E. Miller, Dr. S. E. McNeill, Sr., Lonnie Borroum, Ernest Fox, Warren Livingston, Nick Lynch, G. E. Grady, Gentry Dugat, Bob Gardner, Thomas Black, Ruman Franklin, Geo. H. Atkins, Lon Hardy, Vall Ennis, Paul Schulz, Jack Hinebaugh, Ed Neyland, Bruce Wilson, Clyde Thomason, Henry Ford, Otto Maser, Denver Roberts and Bill Hatcher.
